

CONTENTS

Unit-1

1. My Lord the Baby	1
2. Old Love	12
3. What I Found in my Pocket	38
4. The Beauty Industry	43
5. The Little Girl	50

Unit-2

1. Our Casuarina Tree	57
2. Once Upon a Time	62
3. A Prayer for my Daughter	66
4. On His Blindness	72
5. Success is Counted Sweetest	76

Unit-3

1. Parts of Speech	79
2. Articles	94
3. Cloze Test	106

Unit-4

1. Tenses	108
2. Reading Skills	126
3. Synonyms and Antonyms	137

My Lord the Baby - Rabinanath Tagore

Summary

This ~~was~~^{is} the story between Ralcharan and his master. Ralcharan belongs to a poor family because of financial struggle he left his ~~from~~ home and came as servant to his master's house. ^(nanny) he was appointed to nurse his owner's son. As a time passes the small child grown up he went to college completed judicial service.

When the baby began to toddle, he copied his father Ba-ba and his mother Ma-Ma and Paicharan Man-na. Paicharan was so happy by this infant. Anukul got transferred to the bank of Padma by Bongladuh. On his way to curstula Anukul bought little gorast, yellow satin waistcoat, a gold-laced cap and some gold bracelets and anklets. ~~As~~ Anukul mounted his baby to look like ceremonial pride everyday. In the rainy season, the hungry Padma river swallowed terraces, villages, cornfields and covered with its flood, the masses of pain, worried suffering.

Summary

one afternoon rain cleared, weather was cloudy, cool and bright. A small little son did not want to stay in such fine afternoon. Baby climbed gear and Raicharan's baby reached tree-pilley then was no one and no boat is there. The child was boarded and unhappy at the effort made by him is useless. Close to the place they were standing there's two trees Kadamba tree and Aswaththa tree. To make baby happy Raicharan made flower balls and giving to baby. After some minutes baby again get board. He then he quickly pointed his finger in opp direction to look at the bird, but the child can not be happy. Finally he told baby not go anywhere he quickly get the pretty flower and warned don't go near water. The moment Raicharan heard gang, the baby racing towards water baby run and toddles off towards the river when Raicharan came back there's no baby. Raicharan got shocked his blood frozen. ~~He~~ From his broken heart he crying. Mother wester little mother there is no reply. The misty became very anxious they went to search their baby with lanterns in their hands when they got Raicharan home, he felt as portrait at his existence yet they questioned him but Raicharan said he don't know anything everyone thought the Padma river swallowed the child. Mistry ordered him out of house and made all ~~steps~~ Raicharan as kidnapper. Raicharan was so sad and went back to his village.

Pretence	: A way of behaving that is intended to deceive people.
Gurgling	: Making a bubbling sound, typically associated with water flowing or boiling.
Prostrate	: Lying stretched out on the ground with one's face down, often in submission or exhaustion.
Lurking	: Remain hidden or in a place of concealment, typically with an intent to surprise or attack.
Entreaty	: An earnest or humble request.
Resentment	: Bitter indignation at having been treated unfairly.
Extravagance	: Excessive or unnecessary or wasteful spending.
Incompetent	: Lacking the necessary skills or ability to perform effectively.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Rabindranath Tagore (1861-1941) was a distinguished Indian poet, philosopher, and educator, acclaimed for his literary contributions and social reforms. He won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1913 for his collection of verses, Gitanjali. His works include poetry, novels, short stories and essays blending traditional and modern themes, exploring humanism and spirituality. He founded Shantiniketan which later became Visva-Bharati University and has greatly impacted education and culture in India. He remains a central figure in Indian literary and cultural history.

SUMMARY

In Rabindranath Tagore's "My Lord the Baby," Raicharan, a devoted servant starts working for his master, Anukul, at the age of twelve. His primary duty is to care for Anukul's young son, with whom he forms a deep bond. Raicharan's affection for the child grows as he watches him progress from a baby to a toddler. He delights in the boy's milestones and even creates special moments, such as dressing him in fine clothes and playing games. One day, during a rainy season, Raicharan takes the child out in a go-cart. When the child points to a tree with flowers, Raicharan pretends to be distracted by a bird to avoid fetching the flowers. However, the child eventually wanders off towards the river and goes missing. Despite a thorough search, the child is presumed drowned, and Raicharan is accused of negligence and dismissed. Devastated, Raicharan returns to his village, where his wife later gives birth to a son. As the child grows, Raicharan sees similarities between him and his former master's lost son, believing that the new baby is a reincarnation of the old one. He lavishes the same care on this child named Phailina as he did on his former master's son. Years later, Raicharan, now poor and frail, visits Anukul to confess his past actions. He makes his former master and mistress believe that his own son is actually their lost son hoping that he will be forgiven and taken back as their servant. Anukul and his wife are overjoyed to see their lost child but struggle with Raicharan's actions. Anukul agrees to provide a small monthly pension for Raicharan but refuses to take him back into his service. Raicharan, without uttering a word, goes away, never to be found again.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. What was Raicharan's role in the master's house when he first arrived?
2. How did Raicharan show his devotion to the baby as he grew older?
3. What factors from Raicharan's past life influenced his behaviour towards Phailina?
4. How did Raicharan's treatment of Phailina reflect his feelings of guilt and remorse?
5. Why did Raicharan decide to take Phailina to Anukul?

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. Describe Raicharan's journey from being a servant in Anukul's house to becoming a devoted father to Phailina.
2. Analyze the emotional impact on Raicharan after the loss of his master's child and the birth of his own child.
3. Critically assess the moral and ethical implications of Raicharan's decision to return Phailina to Anukul. Was it the right choice? Justify your answer.
4. Analyze the role of fate and destiny in the story. How do these themes influence the characters' decisions and outcomes?

William Hatcher & main character.
Philipa Jameson

Old love

- Jeffrey Archer

① Who are William Hatcher and Philipa Jameson

William Hatcher and Philipa Jameson are two main characters in "Old Love" by Jeffrey Archer. They are the brightest and most competitive English literature scholars at Oxford University. Initially, they are academic rivals, but later they got married.

Who was their first tutor at college?

Simon Jakes of New College was their first tutor at college. He observed their rivalry and used it to bring out the best in both students.

② What is the Prize Essay for which both William Hatcher and Philipa Jameson fiercely compete?

In Jeffrey Archer's story "Old Love", William Hatcher and Philipa Jameson fiercely compete for the Charles Oldham Shakespeare Prize, which was awarded for an essay on a Shakespeare Prize. That year the chosen theme was "Satire in Shakespeare".

③ What is the theme of the prize essay competition?

Who wins this competition?

William Hatcher and Philipa both compete for the Charles Oldham Shakespeare Prize, which was awarded for an essay. That year the theme chosen is "Satire in Shakespeare".

Both win equally in this competition.

NAME _____
DATE: / /

④ Who is Philippa's father? What ^{did} he hide from his daughter?

Philippa's father is a respected and responsible ~~pastor~~ parish priest.

He hides his ^{cancer} illness from his daughter. He ~~thought~~ thought it would affect his daughter's studies.

⑤ Which incident makes William fall in love with Philippa? Where do they marry?

Initially both William Hatchard and Philippa Jameson ^{were} academic rivals but it turned ~~to love~~ ^{into} love after Philippa's father's death. They got married and they ^{spend their} honeymoon in Athens. They got married in Philippa's family church at Brookenhurst.

⑥ How does Philippa die? How does William respond to the news of his wife's death?

Philippa Jameson dies suddenly from heart attack while in the kitchen. She calls out her husband but he is already out of earshot. The cleaning woman discovers her on the floor.

After ~~his~~ Philippa's death Sir William is deeply affected. He leaves a suicide note addressed to Philippa stating "Forgive me. But I had to let her know." He is found with a volume of John Skelton's work in which "whym whom" underlined and his fingers still & cold around it.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jeffrey Archer (born in 1940) is a famous British novelist, short story writer and parliamentarian.

SUMMARY

The story follows two students, William Hatchard and Philippa Jameson, of English literature from Oxford in the 1930s. They both fell in enmity with each other in their first sight. The mutual hatred began a fierce sense of competition between them which enabled them to outshine the contemporaries, but to remain neck-to-neck with each other. The mutual loathing gave way to the epithet "that silly woman" to Philippa and "that arrogant man" to William. They equally loved each other but never showed it at all. They always used to fight against a topic. Both excelled as topers in their final degree exam. The Charles Oldham essay on Shakespeare competition and they both won it. In between, Philippa's father's death brought them close and they fell in love. After the marriage, legend has it that they were never apart for more than a few hours. They had their honeymoon in Athens and for ended up in a heated argument over the relative significance of Doric and Ionic architecture. They were both equally talented in their fields of interests and when Philippa was made a Dame, William was also knighted. Philippa's most irritating habit, to William, was her determination each morning to complete "The Times" crossword before he arrived at the breakfast table. One fine morning in June before their retirement, William, studying the clue, filled the eight boxes left incomplete by Philippa. Philippa instantly retorted that there was no such word. To her delight the word whymwham could not be found in the shorter Oxford Dictionary. William assured her that the word could be found in OED on his desk, which is made for scholars like him, and left for college. Having closed the front door, as she entered the kitchen, Philippa suddenly suffered a heart attack. Heart attacks in women were less common compared to men. She called out to William in vain. The news of her death was conveyed and the story ends with Sir William's suicide note (he shot himself with his histol): "Forgive me, but I had to let her know". There was the volume of the work of John Skelton held open in one of his hand with the word whymwham underlined neatly, his fingers stiff and cold around it. And as "the legend has it, they were never apart for more than a few hours" even in their deaths.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

- Who are William Hatchard and Philippa Jameson? Who was their first tutor at college?
- What is the Prize Essay for which both William and Philippa fiercely compete?
- What is the theme of the Prize Essay Competition? Who wins in the competition?
- Who is Philippa's father? What did he hide from his daughter?
- Which incident makes William fall in love with Philippa? Where do they marry?
- How does Philippa die? How does William respond to the news of his wife's death?

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

- Describe the initial rivalry between William and Philippa.
- How does intense dislike between the two young scholars change into lifelong love?
- Discuss the significance of the title of the story. OR Evaluate the character of William and Philippa.

Talley Archer

written by "old love"

William Hatchard
Philippa Jameson

the 2 main characters they are bright, most temptative English literature
scholars at Oxford

academic rivalry

they fell in enemy with each other at first sight mainly sparked due to
essay competition

Tutor - Simon Jaky

Simon Jaky of rivalry was their first tutor
he observed enemy blow them and used this to bring best out best in them

essay competition
"Charles oldham Shakespeare" prize awarded for essay
competition
Topic - Satire in Shakespeare

tutor - Simon Jaky
suggested them to participate in the
essay competition
the rivalry eventually is increased due to this they both were equally in this competition

"Silly woman"
"Arrogant man"

they love each other secretly but never expressed their love they eventually fight against the topic both are toppers in their final degree exam.
they called themselves
silly woman & arrogant
man

Philippa
Father's death

William Hatchard
and Philippa Jameson love, marriage at in family church at parish Brackenbush
honeymoon - Athens

Philippa father was a
"Paris priest" he died due to cancer. he never told her about it. Philippa knew he thought that it would affect on his daughter's studies.

significance of "Doric and Ionic architecture"
avoid - whyam-whyam

After the death of his father they get closure and get rid of the married at Brackenbush
After marriage they were nervous apart for more than few hours.
They had their honeymoon
in Athens

Philippa Jameson
death - heart attack

They were "honeymoon" to Athens but their honeymoon ended up with argument over significance of Doric & Ionic architecture & the meaning of word whyam-whyam
They both equally fought but they didn't find meaning

Philippa always had a habit of inflating William. One fine morning of June ~~first~~ William before their retirement William studying & books left incomplete by Philippa
the word whyam-whyam could not be found in Oxford dictionary which is only made for scholars like them Philippa entered kitchen and fell down due to heart attack he called William but he is out of earshot. after her death William is greatly affected

appeared he committed suicide he left a note addressed to Phillipa stating that "forgive me, but I had to let her know" he is found with the volume of John Skelton's books in which word Whym, whom, why, understood. his fingers still & cold around it they are the legends who move apart each other for few hours even in death

What I found in my Pocket - G.C. Chesterton

1. What are the common themes found in the differing items Chesterton discovers in his pockets?
2. Surprise and Mystery - The items are unexpected showing how life can surprise us in strange ways.
3. Confusion - life can be odd and confusing where things don't always make sense.
4. self reflection - The objects make him think about who he is and deeper meaning of life.
5. Ordinary vs Extraordinary - what seems normal as first can actually of hidden meaning and wonder.
6. Faith and meaning: Sometimes even in simple things there may be deeper, more spiritual.
7. How does Chesterton use the metaphor of a pocket-knife in his reflections?

Chesterton uses the metaphor pocket knife to represent possibility and practicality.

The pocket knife is small, versatile tool but it can be used for various purposes it is symbolize the ability to cut any confusion and problems that means to find a simple solution to ~~the~~ complex problems. It also means that ordinary object can hold deeper meanings & give multiple functions in life.

3. What does Chesterton tell about the significance of a railway ticket he cannot find?

The missing of railway ticket to symbolize feeling at lost ~~significantly~~ not knowing where you are going in life. It represents state of confusion and uncertainty of life's journey. and shows how small every day things can hold great importance in life. and losing them cause a confusion, problem, how ordinary things can carry unexpected weight

4. How does Chesterton's description of his state of mind during the journey contribute to the narrative of the story?

During the journey Chesterton is in state of confusion and tension between order and disorder. showing how the journey itself became a metaphor for his life unpredictably. His mental state enhanced the essay the cause gave a contrast between expectation and reality

5. How does Chesterton method of discovering things from his pocket mirror his process of thinking about the world?

When he pulls out random objects from his pocket, his reflections on life & changed unpredictably. ordinary things have a great value in life.

meaning can be found in small & unexpected details of life, and the process of discovery is more important than the conclusion drawn. His pocket is a just of versatility, coach & unexpected things.

Every time he pulls objects from the pocket process of thinking about the world is changed

What I found in my pocket

It is the ~~essay~~ written by E.K. Chesterton

One of Chesterton traveling by train.

He begins to explore his pocket out of curiosity. First he found a length - it represents a young rebellion, & happiness even though it is small and ordinary. It reminds him of parties and festivity. It shows that he has a little things can bring back happy memory

The next thing he took out was a

② pocket knife - pocket knife is a symbol of practicality & flexibility even though it is small versatile thing it has a various way it can cut any tension, loneliness it has the ability to cut complex problems into simple things, showing that how ordinary things have a large value.

next thing he found is box of matches - represents how small ordinary thing like match box represents power, potential, usefulness, fire it is used at a to create fire. In a positive way we can use to cook food, it give a warmth light but it has also an ability to burn anything fourth thing he found is piece of chalk -

the small simple object reminds him of his love of drawing, chalk becomes a symbol of creativity and artist can be found in anywhere even in dirt

The fifth thing he found was a coin - which represents money, value of money in life, it represents commerce, exchange & adventure.

the coins pass from hands to hands connecting people and place and carrying hidden stories that all objects are in a common thing, thus that is surprise & mystery - like

always a conclusion

every time he picks out a thing in his pocket the process of thinking about the world got changed.

45-49

Every time he picks out a thing in his pocket the process of thinking about the world got changed.

meaning

connecting no small object to a big something

trios	:	Strange and interesting objects
confetti	:	Small pieces of coloured papers generally thrown about at festive occasions
entrails	:	Internal organs or the internal parts of something scars	:	Wounds caused by strokes of rod or whip
anvil	:	A heavy iron block used as a surface upon which metal can be struck and shaped frescoes	:	Mural paintings made on freshly laid wet plaster
superscription	:	An inscription or writing on something, typically at the top of a document or coin

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

G.K. Chesterton (1874-1936) was a prolific British writer known for his wit and philosophical insights. He created the detective priest Father Brown and authored influential works like "Orthodoxy" and "The Everlasting Man." Chesterton's writing, rich in paradox and humour, explores faith, reason, and social issues. His engaging style and deep reflections continue to inspire and captivate readers today.

SUMMARY

In "What I Found in My Pocket," G.K. Chesterton offers a delightful and retrospective reflection on the seemingly mundane contents of his pocket. The essay begins with Chesterton listing the ordinary items he finds: a piece of chalk, a box of matches, a piece of string, and other everyday objects. Each item becomes a springboard for philosophical musings and imaginative thoughts. The piece of chalk, for example, leads Chesterton to ponder over the importance of colour and creativity. He reflects on how such a simple object can bring vivid images and ideas to life, emphasizing the power of imagination in transforming the ordinary into the extraordinary. Similarly, the box of matches evokes thoughts on the nature of fire, its potential for both creation and destruction, and the delicate balance it represents in human existence. The piece of string serves as a metaphor for simplicity and utility. Chesterton marvels at how such an unremarkable item can have countless uses, symbolizing the hidden value and potential in everyday objects. Through reflections, Chesterton illustrates his belief in finding wonder and meaning in the commonplace. Chesterton's writing is characterized by his wit and curiosity as he turns a simple inventory of pocket contents into a profound exploration of life's little mysteries. He encourages readers to look beyond the surface of ordinary things and appreciate their deeper significance.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. What are the common themes found in the different items Chesterton discovers in his pocket?
2. How does Chesterton use the metaphor of a pocket-knife in his reflections?
3. What does Chesterton infer about the significance of a railway ticket he cannot find?
4. How does Chesterton's description of his state of mind during his journey contribute to the narrative of the essay?
5. How does Chesterton's method of discovering items from his pocket mirror his process of thinking about the world?

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. Summarize the primary items Chesterton discovers in his pocket and discuss their symbolic meanings.
2. Critically evaluate the effectiveness of Chesterton's use of metaphors in conveying his philosophical insights. How do these metaphors enhance the reader's understanding?
3. Explore the relationship between Chesterton's sense of nostalgia and his philosophical musings about the items in his pocket. How does this relationship impact the reader's perception of the essay?
4. Discuss how Chesterton's personal experience of finding items in his pocket could be applied to a modern context. What might be a contemporary equivalent of his reflections?

4. The Beauty Industry

(A Critical Analysis)

- Aldous Huxley

INTRODUCTION

Aldous Huxley, the author of the essay "The Beauty Industry" is a scientist turned to literature. Today we remember him as a poet, novelist, short-story writer, essayist and social critic. His novels Point Counterpoint, Eyeless in Gaza and Brave New World depict the social and political conditions of his age. His novels shocked and delighted not only England but the whole world. His later writings deal mostly with the problems of the post-War world. He was an advocate of spiritualism. In the prescribed extract he discusses the enormous sums of money spent by European states and American states on the cosmetic industry. (He speaks of the merits and demerits of the Beauty Industry. Its merit is that it enables women to look young for a longer time than before. Its demerit is that it has not brought about any change to the inner beauty of women, for inner beauty is as important as outer beauty.)

CONTENTS

America → (4) Beauty Industry was not affected by the Two World Wars. The great recession, which hit all the nations of the world in the period between the two World Wars, had not affected the Beauty Industry in America. American women spent three million pounds a week on their faces and bodies before the depression. They continued to spend as much even after the slump. The facts and figures were official and were acceptable. The income from the beauty industry was almost equal to the income from bootlegging and racketeering; movies and automobiles. As per Huxley's estimate the total sum of the income of the American beauty industry was more than twice the revenue of India.

European Women Spend Less for Beautification

Aldous Huxley then goes on to comment on the women of Europe. European women spend less for beautification. Though he does not know the exact figures of pounds expended by the women folk in Europe, he is certain that it is less. Rarely an individual spends for the face as she spends for the maintenance of a Rolls Royce, an expensive car as the majority of European women just wash their face. The soap would transform them into likeness of bewitching creatures of posters displayed on billboards. High-powered motorcars and electric 92 refrigerators were costly beyond the means of Europeans. So also were the expensive beautification in Europe. But even in Europe people spent during the years between the two World Wars, much more than ever before on beautification.

Modern Cult of Beauty

Huxley expresses his views on modern cult of beauty. To him modern cult of beauty is not a function of wealth alone. Women are fit on other things but not on spending on their appearance. So the cult of beauty should be attributed to the changes in the status of women in the modern world towards physical beauty.

Huxley is rather sarcastic and critical of women when he speaks of their freedom. They have the freedom to perform social functions as they do. They are free to exercise the privilege of being attractive. Though they have no right to be less virtuous than their grandmothers they have the privilege of looking less virtuous. The modern British matron does her best to achieve and preserve her appearance. The same women would have been called immoral by their predecessors. But the modern British matron is shocked morally but are shocked aesthetically. Huxley feels that just as any woman, the Matron is justified in being preoccupied with her personal appearance. It is said that our body is evil and the spirit alone is good. When we ignore the theory of god and evil and accept that our body is good, what is wrong in trying to beautify it? Christian ascetic ideas no longer trouble us. There is an element of sarcasm when he speaks of the demand for justice for the body as well as for the soul. So face-cream, cosmetics, beauty specialists, sellers of rubber reducing belts and massage machines and the authors of books on the culture of abdomen are the fruits of the Modern Cult of Beauty.

Fruits of the Modern Cult of Beauty

Huxley poses a number of questions regarding the results of the modern cult of beauty. He tries to explain that the campaign for more physical beauty is at once a success and a lamentable failure. Are women more beautiful than they were? Where have the massage and the health resorts led us? Do women get anything for what they spend, time, energy and money? It is difficult to answer these questions. Huxley says that the success or failure of the modern cult of beauty depends on how we look at the results.

Success of the Modern Cult

How far is the modern cult of beauty successful? Modern women looking for longer days than the women in the past and so old women are becoming rare. In course of time all symptoms of age would be extinct. In the future, it would be very difficult to distinguish the portrait of the artist's mother from that of the artist's daughter. The surgical and chemical aids might help a woman look beautiful but that is not real beauty. Aldous Huxley's concept of real beauty is different.

Real Beauty and for Spiritual Beauty

Real beauty is a matter of inner as well as outer self. The beauty of a porcelain jar is a matter of shape, colour and surface texture. Whether the jar is full of honey, or empty, or full of cobwebs, it has nothing to do with the beauty of the jar. But a woman, if she is full of life and beauty is not skin deep. The surface of our body is affected by the contents inside. Huxley has seen women who were physically beautiful but ugly inward because there was either spiritual emptiness in them or they were filled with corruption.

Who are Ugly Women?

Huxley speaks of the various forms of psychological ugliness of stupidity or unawareness is common among the beautiful women. Women who are lascivious and who are greedy for a life of luxury and try to look beautiful have gloominess and sultriness on their fresh faces. Huxley speaks of two American girls whom he met in North Africa. The pure aesthetician (one who has eyes of external beauty) might consider the two girls beautiful but Huxley could see only gloom and sullenness on their faces. Their walk and gestures revealed only a lack of interest in everything in life. To Huxley they were not attractive rather they were repulsive.

Emotional Disturbance and Instinctive Disharmony

Many pretty faces are spoiled by the hardness and roughness of their faces. The hardness is not due to psychological ugliness but due to the painting on their faces. Most of the women in Paris over painted their faces and they did not look human beings at all and they turned out to be imperfectly alive. The hardness and deadliness seen on their faces is a result from the emotional disturbance and instinctive disharmony. Freud attributes this emotional disturbance and instinctive disharmony to sexual perversion.

Conclusion

If the campaign for beauty is concerned only with the success of making one look young for a longer time, the attempt would be a total failure.

the campaign should aim at toughening the deepest source of beauty namely the soul. The health motors and electric hair removers would not make men beings beautiful. Men and women would be beautiful only if they have the opportunity to live completely and harmoniously. Absence of artificial incentive towards any vice and absence of natural tendency towards vice would contribute to perfect beauty aimed at by Huxley. If it is accepted to a greater extent, there will be less ugly human beings in the world. Huxley concludes that we should be satisfied with moderate hopes and we should not be over optimistic.

GLOSSARY

great recession	: The great slump or economic crisis which hit the advanced countries between the two World Wars
illegitimate	: Make, transport or sell alcoholic liquor illegally
reckless	: A criminal action of being involved in a racket (illegal profit-making scheme)
one woman	: A woman of less virtue
one	: A hag or an ugly frightening old woman
sign of health	: Beauty is one of the symptoms of health
Austrian	: A follower of Sigmund Freud (1856 - 1939). Austrian neurologist
imitating	: Replicating or imitating
attractiveness	: Bewitchingly beautiful, extremely attractive
consumerism	: The preoccupation with and an inclination towards the buying of consumer goods
critique	: A detailed analysis and assessment of something, often pointing out its faults and shortcomings
commodification	: The process of turning something into a commodity that can be bought and sold conformity	: Compliance with standards, rules, or laws; behavior in accordance with socially accepted conventions

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Aldous Huxley (1894-1963) was a British writer and philosopher known for his dystopian novel "Brave New World" and essays that explore social and philosophical themes. His works often critiqued societal norms, scientific advancement, and the impact of technology on humanity. Huxley's writing style is characterized by its depth and a keen sense of social criticism.

SUMMARY

"The Beauty Industry" by Aldous Huxley is a critique of how advertising and consumerism manipulate our perceptions of beauty. Huxley argues that the beauty industry's relentless promotion of products creates an artificial standard of beauty, which many people feel pressured to attain. This bombardment with images of flawless faces and perfect bodies leads to insecurities and dissatisfaction among individuals who may not meet unrealistic ideals.

Huxley suggests that true beauty goes beyond physical appearance and emphasizes qualities such as kindness, intelligence, and authenticity as more important than superficial beauty. By focusing solely on outward appearance, Huxley argues, society risks overlooking deeper aspects of worth and potential.

Moreover, Huxley warns against the psychological impact of these standards, suggesting that they can lead to low self-esteem and anxiety about one's appearance. He encourages readers to question the messages conveyed by advertisements and to develop a more balanced perspective on beauty.

In essence, Huxley's message is one of empowerment and acceptance. He urges individuals to resist the pressures imposed by the beauty industry and to cultivate a sense of inner confidence based on personal qualities rather than external appearances. By doing so, Huxley suggests, people can lead more fulfilling lives focused on genuine qualities that bring lasting happiness and fulfillment.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

What is the main theme of Aldous Huxley's essay "The Beauty Industry"?

How does Huxley's critique of the beauty industry relate to modern consumer culture?

Compare Huxley's views on beauty with contemporary societal attitudes towards appearance?

How does Huxley compare the American and the European women in their attitude towards the beauty cult? 43-44 101-103

What are the numerous forms of psychological ugliness? 45

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

"The physical beauty seems to be both a tremendous success and a lamentable failure". How does Huxley prove this statement?

What reasons does the author give to say that ugliness is one of the symptoms of disease?

Evaluate the ethical implications of advertising strategies employed by the beauty industry, based on Huxley's critique.

Analyze the effectiveness of Huxley's essay in prompting readers to reconsider their attitudes towards consumerism and beauty.

'The beauty industry?'

- also practice of opposing view, still in the of practice character, through doing contemporary ~~set~~ societal attitudes appearance

appearance particularly through the lenses

about body positivity & acceptance like hunk

Practically self.

was noble than fibre of revenue of India.

electric and refrigerators

planned with Ed more? did it disappear

② What are the numerous forms of psychological ugliness?

They speak about numerous forms of ugliness, both in sleeping/awakening is common among physically beautiful women & the women who are greedy for money are ugly.

③ women who commit seven deadly sins (greed, pride, envy, anger, covetousness, gluttony and sloth)

④ women who lead a life of luxury and try to look beautiful but have a gloomy and self-loathing on their face.

Summary: "Beauty Industry"

Beauty industry is written by Aldous Huxley. He speaks about merits and demerits of the beauty industry. merit is that it enables women to look beautiful, young for longer time. demerit is that it has brought about big changes in the society. beauty primer, beauty is important than other beauty. Beauty industry is not affected by world war.

America: it is not affected by the beauty industry of America. The American women spent 3 million pounds weekly for face & body during depression also after the economic crisis. The total income of beauty industry in America is almost equal to the income by illegal selling of alcohol, illegal activities, movies and automobiles. The total income by the beauty

industry is double of revenue of India

Europe: European women spend less on beautification they just wash their face with soap. they believe in natural beauty. they spend less pounds. but they spend their money for expensive cars & rollercoaster, automobile, electric refrigerators and many more things.

Nowadays the beauty industry is influencing the people's sensitivity and promoting their products. the society is obsessed with physical appearance. Today's generation is full of superficiality values like beauty, vanity. beauty industry promoting ritual beauty over a rational beauty like intelligence.

By spending the lots of money, we did not get anything. It is waste of time & money. But it is that we didn't find old women and difficult to identify the age.

although physical beauty is obtained by chemical products & surgery but it is not natural beauty. we are not aware of it.

Social medias are promoting the unrealistic influence. beauty photo shops which is greatly affected but some group of people slowly understanding their body's possibility. 194 to 2000 physical ugliness of 5th

conclusion → Men & women are really beautiful when they get opportunity to live completely & reach higher goal than only ugly human beings decreased in world

The 1944 GPR.

Katherine Mansfield

① Why does Kezia feel scared of her father?

Kezia feels scared of her father because he is strict, he was a figure to be feared and avoided. Every morning, before going to bed, he would have a little kiss, he rarely shows affection, always speaks to her in a harsh tone and expects her to behave perfectly. This fear is heightened when she accidentally damaged his belongings, she fears his anger & punishment.

② Describe the relationship between Kezia and her father at the beginning of the story.

She is uncomfortable around him, a lot of emotional tension between them.

③ What does Kezia's grandmother suggest she do for her father's birthday?

Kezia's grandmother suggests that to make a gift for her father on his birthday, she suggest to make a pin cushion with a beautiful yellow silk. She started to make a cushion though stitched thirdly. But she didn't find anything to fill inside it, she cut the pretty paper of her father and filled it and sewed up the fourth side.

④ How does Kezia's perception of her father change throughout the story?

In the starting of the story, she sees him as a strict figure to be feared and avoided. But after the incident when her father beat her and she took care of him, she sees a different side of him. She realizes her father is vulnerable and not as harsh as she once thought. He is not strict but also calls for her angrily, she sees softer side of him.

⑤ Compare Kezia's interactions with her father and Mr. Macdonald. How are they similar and different?

Kezia's interactions with her father and Mr. Macdonald are different with her father, Kezia feels uncomfortable, but figure to be feared and avoided. Kezia's father always beat her in harsh tone and wanted her to be obedient, which she doesn't like. But Mr. Macdonald, family lived in a small room, he was kind, affectionate with his children, he engaged in playing with his children, who makes her realize without different her own father's harshness, kindness, and affection.

nightmare : A bad dream tucked up : Covered up nicely in bed
 cuddled : Moved into a warm, comfortable position, close to another person

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Katherine Mansfield (1888-1923) was a pioneering modernist writer from New Zealand, known for her innovative short stories. Her works often delve into themes of human relationships, the complexities of emotions, and the subtleties of everyday life. Mansfield's prose is celebrated for its keen psychological insights and vivid portrayal of characters, making her a significant figure in modern literature.

SUMMARY

"The Little Girl" (1912) by Katherine Mansfield explores the complex dynamics between Kezia, a young girl, and her father. Kezia initially views her father with fear and ^{strict character} apprehension due to his stern and serious demeanour. She tries to avoid him because she doesn't comprehend why he behaves so strictly. Then her grandmother suggests she make a birthday gift for her father using important papers, Kezia unwittingly uses his crucial documents, leading to her father's severe anger and punishment.

However, the story takes a poignant turn when Kezia experiences a frightening nightmare one night. Unexpectedly, her father responds with kindness and comfort, showing a tender side that surprises Kezia. This incident prompts her to realize that her father loves her deeply, even though his strict exterior sometimes makes him appear unapproachable.

(Through Kezia's observations of other families, like the Macdonalds, who display ^{joy, happiness} warmth and playfulness, she begins to understand that fathers express their love in diverse ways.) This contrast broadens her perspective on fatherly affection.

"The Little Girl" underscores the theme of children's fear of their parents' actions when they are misunderstood. It also highlights the underlying ^{emotion} parental love and concern that motivates strict behaviours, aiming always for the child's well-being. Mansfield's narrative teaches us about empathy, communication, and the importance of recognizing different expressions of love within family relationships. Ultimately, the story emphasizes the significance of understanding and nurturing bonds even amid challenges and misunderstandings.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. Why does Kezia feel scared of her father?
2. Describe the relationship between Kezia and her father at the beginning of the story.
3. What does Kezia's grandmother suggest she do for her father's birthday?
4. How does Kezia's perception of her father change throughout the story?
5. Compare Kezia's interactions with her father and Mr. Macdonald. How are they similar or different?

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. Describe the household dynamics in Kezia's family as depicted in the story.
2. Discuss the significance of the pin-cushion incident in the story. How does it impact Kezia's relationship with her father?
3. Compare and contrast Kezia's perception of her father at the beginning and the end of the story.
4. Do you think Kezia's father's actions were justified considering his intentions? Support your answer with evidence from the story.
5. Assess the impact of Kezia's relationship with her father on her emotional development throughout the story.

1. Our Casuarina Tree

- Toru Dutt

like a huge Python, winding round and round
The rugged trunk, indented deep with scars,
Up to its very summit near the stars,
The creeper climbs, in whose embraces bound
No other tree could live. But gallantly
The giant wears the scarf, and flowers are hung
In crimson clusters all the boughs among,
Whereon all day are gathered bird and bee;
And oft at nights the garden overflows
With one sweet song that seems to have no close,
The night darkling from our tree, while men repose.
When first my casement is wide open thrown
At dawn, my eyes delighted on it rest;
Sometimes, and most in winter,—on its crest
A gray baboon sits statue-like alone
Watching the sunrise; while on lower boughs
His puny offspring leap about and play;
And far and near kokilas hail the day;
And to their pastures wend our sleepy cows;
And in the shadow, on the broad tank cast
That hoar tree, so beautiful and vast,
The water-lilies spring, like snow enmassed.
Not not because of its magnificence
Dear is the Casuarina to my soul:
Beneath it we have played; though years may roll,
Sweet companions, loved with love intense,

For your sakes, shall the tree be ever dear.
 Blent with your images, it shall arise
 In memory, till the hot tears blind mine eyes!

What is that dirge-like murmur that I hear
 Like the sea breaking on a shingle-beach?
 It is the tree's lament, an eerie speech,
 That haply to the unknown land may reach.

Unknown, yet well-known to the eye of faith!

Ah, I have heard that wail far, far away
 In distant lands, by many a sheltered bay,
 When slumbered in his cave the water-wraith
 And the waves gently kissed the classic shore
 Of France or Italy, beneath the moon,
 When earth lay tranced in a dreamless swoon:

And every time the music rose,—before
 Mine inner vision rose a form sublime,
 Thy form, O Tree, as in my happy prime
 I saw thee, in my own loved native clime.

Therefore I fain would consecrate a lay Unto thy honor, Tree, beloved of those

Who now in blessed sleep, for aye, repose, Dearer than life to me, alas! were they!

Mayst thou be numbered when my days are done
 With deathless trees—like those in Borrowdale,
 Under whose awful branches lingered pale

“Fear, trembling Hope, and Death, the skeleton,
 And Time the shadow;” and though weak the verse
 That would thy beauty fain, oh fain rehearse,
 May Love defend thee from Oblivion's curse.

GLOSSARY

non	: Used in the poem to describe the creeper winding around the tree
erlet	: A bright red colour used to describe the flowers
ighs	: Large branches of the tree
m	: An archaic or poetic term for morning
oon	: A type of monkey
net	: A small songbird
ie	: Used to describe the sound of the tree at night.
rp	: The sound made by small birds.
stalgia	: Remembrance of the loving memories of the past
sement	: A window that opens on hinges
mbolling	: Frolicking or playing, used to describe the baboon's actions
rk	: An archaic term meaning to listen, used to draw attention to the sounds around the tree.
shed	: Quiet and still, used to describe the atmosphere.
hpes	: Repeated sounds that bounce back, mentioned in the context of the tree.
ar	: White or gray with age, used poetically to describe the tree's appearance in the morning.
sonant	: Deep, clear, and continuing to sound or ring, used to describe the sound of the tree.

ABOUT THE POET

ru Dutt (1856-1877) was a pioneering Indian poet and translator who wrote in English and French. Known for her evocative poetry and prose, she bridged cultural ps between India and the West. Despite her short life, Dutt left a lasting legacy in do-Anglian literature, blending romanticism with Indian themes.

SUMMARY

"Our Casuarina Tree" by Toru Dutt is a heartfelt poem that reflects the poet's deep emotional connection to a casuarina tree in her childhood. The poem is composed of five stanzas, each depicting various aspects of the tree and its significance.

In the first stanza, Dutt describes the tree's majestic appearance, with crimson flowers and towering over the surrounding landscape. She personifies the tree, portraying it as a guardian that offers shelter to birds and animals. The imagery of the tree intertwined with a python-like vine conveys a sense of wild beauty and strength.

The second stanza shifts focus to the tree's impact on the environment, with birds singing from its branches and bees humming around it. This emphasizes the tree's role in creating a harmonious and vibrant natural world.

In the third stanza, the poet reminisces about her childhood memories of playing in the tree's shade with her siblings. The tree stands as a witness to their innocent joys and adventures. These memories evoke a sense of nostalgia and longing for the past.

The fourth stanza delves deeper into the emotional bond between the poet and the tree. Dutt sees the tree as a symbol of resilience and stability amidst life's changes and challenges. It represents a source of comfort and continuity in her life.

In the final stanza, Dutt expresses her desire for the tree to be remembered and cherished even after her own death. She wishes for the tree to be immortalized in poetry, ensuring its legacy will endure.

To sum up, "Our Casuarina Tree" is a poignant tribute to nature, where the enduring connections that shape our lives. Dutt's vivid imagery and emotional depth make the poem a powerful reflection on the passage of time and the enduring bonds of love and nostalgia.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

- Describe the appearance of the casuarina tree as depicted in the poem.
- How does the poet personify the tree in the poem?
- Give an example of a simile or metaphor used in the poem.
- What is the significance of the python-like creeper in the poem?
- Why do you think the poet has a deep emotional connection to the tree?

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

- Provide a detailed summary of 'Our Casuarina Tree'.
- How does Toru Dutt use the casuarina tree as a metaphor for resilience and continuity in life?
- Discuss the environmental significance of trees as portrayed in 'Our Casuarina Tree'.
- Examine the emotional transitions in 'Our Casuarina Tree.' How does the poet convey different feelings towards the tree throughout the poem?

Our Casuarina tree.

NAME _____
DATE ____/____/____

① Describe the appearance of our ~~casuarina~~ casuarina tree depicted in the poem. It was like a giant, ^{too strong} casuarina tree depicted as tall, large, a creeper like a python is winding. The ~~tree~~ ^{very high} trunk of casuarina tree very tightly its hold was too tight so it left scars on it. Tree has proudly worn those scars like a scar, representing its strength. It filled with crimson flowers in every boughs like a crown that invites birds & bees, birds & bees flying on the tree.

② How does the poet personify the tree in the poem. The poet personifies the casuarina tree by describing it as has human like qualities, emotions and memory.

Tree is described ^{personify} 'like a giant' which means tree has a protective nature of guardian, and also tree is ~~an~~ a silent witness of poet's childhood memory. Tree holds stories & experience of past.

weeper 'like a huge python', conveys that tree is alive. and poet also imagined the tree shares her loss which she hears like murmur resembling the waves breaking on a pebble beach. The poet also erect something in honour to casuarina tree. it ~~was~~ is eternal & sacred

③ Give an example of simile or metaphor used in the poem

A creeper climbs like a huge python → there explain
The tree stands tall like a giant flowers in every boughs like a crown.

NAME _____
DATE ____/____/____

④ What is the significance of the python like creeper in the poem.

A python like a python winding the trunk of the tree round and round. It embraces the tree very tightly so it left scars on it. The tree worn those scars like a giant representing its strength. The tight was too strong that no other tree could live but this tree died. The python like imagery suggest that like the creeper ~~we~~

We are the casuarina tree and the creepers are the problems restrictions even though we have a problems we stand like a casuarina tree tall & strong.

⑤ Why do you think the poet has a deep emotional connection to the tree.

3rd stanza
Poet remembers ^{convents} or why the casuarina tree will remain dear to her always. Beside morning bliss, the tree reminds her of the time she played with her siblings. The tree blended with the memory of them giving her the image of intense love they shared leaving tears in the poet's eyes. She also imagined that tree will share her loss which hears like a dirge like a murmur resembling in pebble beach.

8) Either you or I am mistaken (are I am)

9) neither he nor his relatives are rich (is are)

10) ~~The student~~ Poetry

Our Casuarina Tree

Ballads - sentiment

Python - snake

How How

Summary

Our Casuarina Tree is the poem written by Toru Dutt. In that she celebrates her reminiscence of a happy childhood with her beloved siblings.

① In the first stanza the poet begins with the description & structure of the Casuarina tree.

~~Casuarina tree~~ roots like a ~~huge snake~~, creeper winding around like a python (snake). Tree hold was too tight so it had left a ^(deep marks) scars (marks) on the trunks (branches). The poet further describes that no other tree would sustained this hold, for it is too strong, but her tree did.

Like giant the tree has proudly worn those scars like a scarf, representing its strength. To further describe its beauty, the poetess says it is filled with crimson flowers in every bough like a crown that invites birds and bees, often at night when the poetess could not sleep. She used to listen to the music that filled her garden.

The poem concludes with the poet's deep longing for the tree, her home, and the simpler, more innocent times of her past. It becomes clear that the tree is not just a symbol of nature, but also a reflection of the poet's connection to her roots, her heritage, and her identity.

③ In second stanza of the poem starts with the morning view. and what is there in beside the tree. when every morning she opens her window, and her eye's rest on the delighted tree. Sometimes during other seasons and mostly during the winter seasons. she has seen a habbon sitting on the top branch like a statue waiting to receive the first array of sunlight whereas his 'Puny ol' Spring' plays around in the lower branch of the tree. Along with his scenic beauty, the poet also experienced Kokila's welcoming note. she has also observed the crows gathered towards the postures and the water lilies spring under the shadow of the pear tree, like gathered snow.

④ In the third stanza the poet describes the childhood memory of her. the poet comments on why the tree will remain her of the time she played with her siblings. The tree blended with the memory of things gives her the images of the intense love they shared, leaving tears in the poet's eyes. The poet's mourns for those departed souls. she also imagines that the tree shares her loss which she hears as Binge like murmur resembling the waves breaking on a pebble beach.

④ In the fourth stanza, the poet presents an in depth connection with the tree. Through the image of waves, she takes us to a foreign land which is known as 'where the waves gently kissed the classic shore'. whenever this music of the waves touching the leaves touching the waves visit it arouses the memory of the tree in front of the poet's eyes as she has seen in her youth.

⑤ In a final and last stanza, the speaker wants to red something in honor of the Casuarina tree. For those who were beloved. who were resting in peace, love it. she wants the tree to bring live long like those trees of Borougda making a reference to Swordsworth's 'You trees' Also she makes an attempt to distinguish the trees of England from the Casuarina tree, connecting to her varying emotion. The Casuarina tree stands for nostalgia, longing & memory whereas the trees of England reflect her isolation. (The final lines of the poem underscore the idea of a poem as written memory. The poet's seeks love to protect the tree & her poem from time's ravages. The poem 'Our Casuarina Tree' is a reminder of Toru Dutt's childhood & the happiness she experienced with her siblings & friends that childhood is not active, new.)

Summary

Our Casuarina Tree, this poem written by Toru Bunt.

In the first stanza of Our Casuarina Tree begins with the image of the tree, the poet says that a creeper like a python (snake) is winding the tree. It held was too tight - so it had left a scars on the trunk, like a giant the tree has proudly worn, those scars like a scar, representing its strength. To further described its beauty the poet says it is filled with crimson flowers in every boughs like a crown that invites birds & bees and the birds & bees are flying on the tree. Even at night when the poet's could not sleep she used to listen to the music that filled her garden.

In second stanza, the poem starts with a morning view and he & his rest on the delighted tree sometimes during other seasons and especially during winter seasons she has seen a baboon sitting on the top branch like a statue waiting to receive first array of sunlight when as his 'puny of spring' plays around in the lower branch of the tree along with his scenic beauty, the poet also experience Rokko's wilderness, notes she has also observed the crows guided towards the postures and the water lilies spring under the shadow of the hear tree like gathered snow.

In the third stanza, the poet comments on why the tree will remain dear to her always besides morning bliss, the tree reminds her of the time she played with her siblings or cousins. The tree blended with the memory of them, giving her the image of 'lost love'. They shared, leaving scars on the poet's eyes. She also imagined that the tree's story her loss which she hears as like a Nigmur resembling the waves breaking on a beach. In the fourth stanza, the poet connects the tree with the connection with the tree through the image of waves, she takes us to a foreign land which is known as 'where the waves gently kissed the classic shore'. In the final and last stanza, the speaker wants to enrich something in honour of the Casuarina Tree. For those who were beloved, who are living in peace, love it. She wants to the tree to live long like those trees of 'barren shore' making an experience to 'swords' sweetest. 'You tree?'. The final lines of the poem underscore the idea of the poem as the written memory her poet's seeks love to protect the tree and her poems from time is a reminder of Toru Bunt's childhood & the happiness she experienced with her siblings & friends that childhood is not active now.

Once Upon A Time - Gabriel Okara.

Once upon a time this poem is written by Gabriel Okara. The poem is conversation between a father and his son does through with emotion and the father wants use to forget his late personality and reclaim and create real personality from his son. And he is asking the son to show him how to express true love and show real personality to others.

In the first stanza the author mentions that people used to laugh with their heart they used to laugh with their emotions, when they would laugh they would do it whole heartedly and with warmth and they used to laugh with their eyes and show pleasure with them. And know they do it with only their teeth not with their heart, meaning they do not really want to laugh but do it just to get closer to you and with their dark gloomy cold eyes they watch you and wait for you from the corner of their eyes waiting for you to leave "search behind the shadow". In my opinion the words "they" refer to the white people who had invaded their country and influenced them with their culture. In this stanza the words "ice - blank - cold eyes" is used these words emphasize the coldness and the inner hatred that they have for you like they can freeze water with their gaze.

In the second stanza he is talking about when people ~~used to~~ be further talks about the personality of the people of the past he says "they used to shake with their hearts" here he is trying to say that when you would meet each other you will shake their hands with pleasure and that was how they used to greet each other. In the third stanza he says "I am not the same" this is because he is saying that he is not the same person as he was before. He is saying that he has changed and he is not the same person as he was before. He is saying that he has changed and he is not the same person as he was before.

only words exchanged from lips that drive drive a lot of people to wear a mask of colour to continue a pleasant conversation to make the other person feel good by saying pleasant words of their hearts at a time when they are people are very kind and about the world

In the fourth stanza he talks about how he has learned to put on faces like how outfits and masks are put on at different times and with different people you act differently, for example in the office you act in one way to a person but when you meet them on the street you act different another way to them and how all the faces that people have on different occasions. He says "I have learned too" which is suggesting that he also changed with the change of people around him. He also mentions "with all their conforming smiles like a fixed portrait" suggesting that they all have the same smile all the time not showing any true emotion

ADVERB

3/10/24

Adverb def'n:

Adverb that adds more information about place, time, manner, cause or degree to a verb

Types of Adverb

Types	Adverbs	Ex
① Adverbs of Time	Sometimes, recently, during, always, soon, yet, usually, never etc.	1. Sometimes I used to go out for refreshments. 2. He recently purchased necklace
② Adverbs of place	Everywhere, into, now here, here, there, above, below, inside etc.	1. He jumped into the river 2. An airplane is flying above the clouds

Once Upon a Time - Gabriel Okara

Q. What is the central theme of the poem 'Once upon a time'?

Loss of authenticity and emotional connection in human interactions. The speaker reflects on nostalgic past where sincerity and genuine emotions prevailed, contrasting it with a present marked superficially and pretense.

Q. Explain the significance of the phrase 'Once upon a time' in the context of the poem.

One upon a time in the context signifies how the people behaved in the past when the people are more honest and genuine. (Past reflects on nostalgic past where sincerity and genuine emotions are prevailed, contrasting it with present marked superficiality and pretense).

Q. How does Okara use irony to critique modern societal norms in his poem?

Okara uses irony 'Once upon a time' to critique modern societal norms. (Past reflects on a nostalgic past where the sincerity and the genuine emotions are prevailed, contrasting it with an present marked superficially and pretense). The irony lies in the fact that while the generation is changed, human connections have become more artificial & insincere.

Q. Identify and discuss one example from the poem that illustrates Okara's critique of superficiality in modern life. One example 'laughing with hearts'.

like dresses	:	Metaphor for adopting different personas or identities in different contexts.
Conforming smiles	:	Smiles that conform to social expectations rather than genuine feelings.
Fixed portrait smile	:	A smile that is fixed or artificial, lacking spontaneity.
Good-riddance	:	Expression of relief or indifference upon parting.
Laugh in the mirror	:	Reflecting on one's own insincere or forced expressions of happiness.
Snake's bare fangs	:	Metaphor for a smile that appears threatening or dishonest.

ABOUT THE POET

Gabriel Okara, born in 1921, is a famous Nigerian poet and novelist known for blending traditional African storytelling with modern themes. His poetry explores cultural identity, cultural clashes, and life's complexities, reflecting Nigeria's changing landscape. Okara's work is celebrated for its cultural depth and artistic innovation in African literature.

SUMMARY

Gabriel Okara's poem "Once Upon a Time" contrasts the simplicity and honesty of the past with the artificiality and insincerity of today's society. The phrase "Once upon a time," typically found in fairy tales, Okara uses to critique how people now often hide their true feelings behind polite facades. He mourns the loss of genuine human interactions and authenticity in modern life and behaviour.

The poem also explores the clash between traditional African values and Western influences, suggesting that these external forces have eroded authentic cultural identities. Through vivid imagery and thought-provoking questions, Okara prompts readers to consider the impact of these societal changes. In essence, "Once Upon a Time" is a reflection on the superficiality of modern life and a reminder of the importance of honesty and genuine connections. It encourages us to value sincerity amidst societal pressures, emphasizing the need to preserve cultural identity in a world that often prioritizes appearance over substance.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

- What is the central theme of the poem?
- Explain the significance of the phrase 'Once upon a time' in the context of the poem.
- How does Okara use irony to critique modern societal norms in his poem?
- Identify and discuss one example from the poem that illustrates Okara's critique of superficiality in modern life.

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

- Describe the historical and cultural context in which Gabriel Okara wrote "Once Upon a Time."
- Explain how Okara uses symbolism in the poem to convey his critique of contemporary society.
- Assess the effectiveness of Okara's poem in challenging readers to reconsider the value of honesty and genuine connections.
- Outline the structure of "Once Upon a Time" and discuss how it contributes to the poem's overall message.

3. A prayer for my daughter.

NAME _____
DATE: / /

① What is central theme of the poem?

The central theme of the prayer for my daughter - it is written by W.B. Yeats. He is a father who wish for his daughter's future well being. He prays that his daughter will grow up very strong, virtuous, and unaffected by chaos, vanity, superficiality of the world and ^{have} she finds ^(inner) peace & wisdom.

② What societal concerns does Yeats express in the poem?

Societal concerns about ^{(un)stability} instability and turmoil (state of confusion) of his time (generations), particularly following the Irish civil war. He worries about the impact of social and political chaos on future generation especially vulnerability of women to superficial values like beauty, vanity. Also expresses anxiety over the erosion of moral values and challenges of raising children.

③ Give an example of personification used in this poem?

Personifications → "The winds that shake the door"
Yeats personifies wind by saying that wind has the ability to shake door even though it is non living being. He compares it to a living being. So it is personification.

This creates a vivid image that external force of nature affecting domestic space symbolise external forces might impact his daughter's future.

④ thus does yeast contrast innocence with worldly concerns in the poem?

Yeast contrast innocence with worldly concerns by juxtaposing his wish that his daughter grown up very strong, virtuous, pure and well being by nature. he hopes she will find wisdom and inner peace ~~in~~ symbolized, innocence in this cruel world and she ~~is~~ unaffected by chaos, vanity & superficiality & not influenced by beauty & vanity. This contrast highlights tension b/w the ~~the~~ innocence & harsh reality of life

⑤ Identify stanza, where yeast captures his concerns about societal change in Third stanza, yeast captures ^{more} concerns about societal change

He mentions "For the world is full of weeping than you can understand" it suggest instability and ~~anxiety~~ turmoil & of this generation. In particular following Irish civil war. He worries about the impact of social & political chaos on future of his daughter and ^{anxiety} ~~anxiety~~ over the erosion of moral values & changes of raising children in today's generation.

A prayer for my Daughter

It is the poem written by W.B. Yeats ~~where~~ for his new born daughter. He expresses his fear and hope in this poem he wishes ~~that~~ his daughter's ~~future~~ future well being. He prays that for daughter will be grown up very strong virtuous and unaffected by the chaos, vanity ^{superficiality} of today's generation. she wisely finds wisdom and inner peace instead.

It also explains about the societal concerns like instability and turmoil of this generation particularly following Irish civil war, and effect of social and political chaos on future generation and worries about the erosion of moral values and challenges of raising the children in today's generation.

He uses a personification that windy that shake the door indicates external force has the ability to enter in domestic life he worries about effect of external force on his daughter's future. 'the world is more full of weeping than you can understand' from this line clearly shows about his concern on the world.

Throughout the poem his love, care, protection personification reflected in this poem.

ABOUT THE POET

W.B. Yeats (1865-1939) was an influential Irish poet and playwright known for his evocative poetry exploring Irish mythology, history, and the human experience. His works blend lyrical beauty with profound themes of spirituality, identity, and the complexities of life, making him a significant figure in literature and cultural studies.

SUMMARY

"A Prayer for My Daughter" by W.B. Yeats is a heartfelt poem where the poet expresses his hopes and fears for his newborn daughter. Yeats begins by reflecting on the chaotic state of the world, filled with "storm and tumult," and how it might affect his daughter's innocence. He prays fervently for her to grow up with inner beauty, grace, and moral integrity, wishing that she grows up with inner beauty, grace, and moral integrity.

Yeats emphasizes the importance of innocence and purity, hoping that his daughter will remain untouched by the harsh realities of life. He prays that she will have the strength to overcome challenges and make wise decisions. The poem also reflects Yeats' concerns about societal changes and the decay he sees around him, contrasting these with his desire for his daughter to embody timeless virtues.

Throughout the poem, Yeats' love for his daughter shines through as he contemplates her future and the responsibilities of parenthood. He wrestles with his anxieties about her well-being but ultimately places his faith in the power of prayer and the hope that she will find happiness and fulfillment in life.

In summary, "A Prayer for My Daughter" is a poignant expression of parental love and concern. It captures Yeats' hopes and aspirations for his daughter amidst a world fraught with challenges, offering a timeless prayer for her protection, wisdom, and happiness.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

- What is the central theme of the poem?
- What societal concerns does Yeats express in the poem?
- Give an example of personification used in the poem.
- How does Yeats contrast innocence with worldly concerns in the poem?
- Identify the stanza where Yeats expresses his concerns about societal changes.

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

- Summarize the main message of W.B. Yeats' poem "A Prayer for My Daughter."
- Discuss the impact of the poem's closing lines on the reader's understanding of Yeats' message.
- How does Yeats use imagery to convey his fears and hopes for his daughter's future?
- Explain how Yeats addresses the theme of resilience in the poem.

4. On His Blindness

(Sonnet 19: When I consider how my light is spent)

- John Milton

When I consider how my light is spent,
 Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
 And that one Talent which is death to hide
 Lodged with me useless, though my Soul more bent
 To serve therewith my Maker, and present
 My true account, lest he returning chide;
 "Doth God exact day-labour, light denied?"
 I fondly ask. But patience, to prevent
 That murmur, soon replies, "God doth not need Either man's work or his own gifts; who best Bear his mild yoke, they serve him best. His state
 Is Kingly. Thousands at his bidding speed
 And post o'er Land and Ocean without rest:
 They also serve who only stand and wait."

GLOSSARY

Light	: Refers to Milton's vision or sight, symbolizing his ability to see and work.
Talent	: Milton's poetic gift or ability, which he feels is wasted to his blindness.
Yoke	: A burden or responsibility, often referring to the obligation of serving God.

Maker	: God, the creator, to whom Milton feels accountable.
Lodged with me	: Milton feels his talent is wasted or inactive because of his blindness.
useless	: The idea of giving an account or explanation to God for how one uses their gifts.
Account	: To scold or rebuke; Milton worries God will criticize him for not using his talents.
Chide	: Milton questions whether God expects him to work despite his blindness.
Doth God exact day-labour, light denied?	: Personified as a character in the poem, representing the virtue of accepting one's situation calmly.
Patience	: The gentle or light burden that God places on people, suggesting that God's expectations are reasonable.
Mild yoke	: A famous line meaning that those who patiently accept their situation and wait on God's will are also serving Him.
They also serve who only stand and wait	: Refers to God's kingdom or the divine realm, where many serve God in different ways.
Thousands at his bidding speed	: Suggests that many serve God actively, moving quickly to fulfil His commands.

ABOUT THE POET

John Milton (1608-1674) was a distinguished English poet and intellectual, widely recognized for his epic work "Paradise Lost." His literature deeply impacted English literary tradition, reflecting intricate religious, political, and philosophical themes. Milton's profound explorations of human nature and divine justice remain influential to this day.

SUMMARY

"On His Blindness" is a reflective sonnet by John Milton about struggle with losing his sight and trying to understand his role in life despite this challenge. The poem, written as a Petrarchan sonnet with two parts, explores themes of faith, patience, and serving God.

Milton starts by thinking about his blindness, lamenting the loss of "light" and fearing that he can no longer use his talent, which he believes was a gift from God meant for a purpose. He worries about how he can fulfill his potential and serve God without his sight.

Milton's worry comes from the belief that God expects him to use his abilities. This makes him question whether God demands work from those who are disadvantaged. He feels frustrated and inadequate, thinking that his blindness condemns him to a useless life.

The turning point in the sonnet comes when Patience, personified, responds to Milton's inner struggle. Patience reassures him that God does not require everyone to perform active work or great deeds. Instead, God values those who accept their challenges with grace. The poem's message is that service to God also includes enduring difficulties with faith.

The sonnet ends with the famous line, "They also serve who only stand and wait," meaning that patience and acceptance of God's plan are also valuable forms of service. Milton finds comfort in knowing that even in his blindness, he can serve God by being patient and faithful.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. What does Milton lament losing in the poem?
2. Explain the significance of the line "They also serve who only stand and wait."
3. Give an example of a metaphor used in the poem.

How does Milton feel his blindness has affected his ability to serve God?

How does Milton's use of imagery contribute to the reader's understanding of his frustration?

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

Summarize the main theme of John Milton's poem "On His Blindness."

Discuss the contrast between Milton's initial despair and his eventual acceptance of his blindness.

Describe the structure of a Petrarchan sonnet and explain how it is used in "On His Blindness."

How might Milton's personal experience of blindness influence his perspective on faith and service to God?

5. Success is Counted Sweetest

Emily Dickinson

Success is counted sweetest
By those who ne'er succeed.
To comprehend a nectar
Requires sorest need.

Not one of all the purple Host
Who took the Flag today
Can tell the definition
So clear of victory

As he defeated - dying -
On whose forbidden ear
The distant strains of triumph
Burst agonized and clear!

GLOSSARY

Nectar	A sweet liquid, often associated with gods in myth, symbolizing something highly desirable.
Purple host	Refers to victorious soldiers, with "purple" symbolizing nobility or victory in historical contexts.
Sorest need	Feeling a very strong and urgent desire for something, showing how much you want it.
Forbidden ear	Refers to the defeated soldier's inability to fully participate in or enjoy the victorious celebration.
Strains of triumph	The sounds or echoes of victory, conveying the emotional impact of success.
Agonized	Intensely painful or distressed, describing the defeated soldier's emotional state.

ABOUT THE POET

Emily Dickinson (1830-1896) is considered one of America's most significant poets, known for her unconventional style and profound exploration of themes like nature, mortality, and the human experience. Her work, mostly discovered and published posthumously, continues to influence modern poetry with its depth and originality.

SUMMARY

"Success is Counted Sweetest" a poem by Emily Dickinson, contrasts the experiences of those who achieve victory with those who do not, illustrating that desire is often greater when the goal remains unattained.

In the first stanza, Dickinson likens success to nectar, stating that its sweetness is best appreciated by those who have not achieved it. Just as nectar is truly savoured by someone in dire need, success is most deeply valued by those who have experienced deprivation.

The second stanza contrasts victorious soldiers, referred to as the "purple host" with the defeated. Dickinson suggests that the soldiers who captured the flag cannot truly understand or define victory as clearly as someone who has lost. The defeated soldier, having fought and lost, has a more profound understanding of what victory means, highlighting that those who win cannot fully grasp the value of their success compared to those who have faced defeat.

In the third stanza, Dickinson conveys that the defeated soldier, in his final moments, comprehends the essence of success more acutely than anyone else. The victory is "forbidden" to him, making the experience of hearing it both painful and profoundly clear. This reinforces the poem's theme that those who have faced failure have the deepest appreciation of success. True appreciation comes from experiencing its opposite—failure or loss. The closer one is to failure, the more they can comprehend and value the sweetness of success.

Overall, Dickinson's poem underscores that true comprehension and appreciation of success stem from longing and deprivation.

WITIC COMPOSITION

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. What is the main metaphor used in the first stanza of the poem?
2. Explain the meaning of the phrase 'purple host' in the context of the poem.
3. What is the significance of the phrase 'forbidden ear' in the third stanza?
4. What is the theme of the poem?

LONG ANSWER QUESTIONS

1. Analyze how Dickinson uses imagery and metaphor to convey the deeper meaning of success in "Success is counted sweetest."
2. Discuss the emotional impact of defeat in the poem and how it enhances the message about the value of success.
3. Examine the use of contrast between the victorious and the defeated in the poem. How does this contrast highlight the theme?
4. Do you agree with Dickinson's perspective that those who fail appreciate success more? Why or why not?
5. Discuss the relevance of "Success is counted sweetest" in contemporary society with examples of modern success and failure.

Success

This poem written by Emily Dickinson. =

In the first stanza, the success is metaphorically compared to sweet by the phrase Success is counted the sweetest success is truly appreciated by the people who never experienced it ~~It~~ then the people who get it. Success is heightened for those who 'deprived' for it. Just like a sweet nectar it is satisfying when it is rare or get after a long time Just like this success is also sweet ~~after~~ ^{when it is} got after a long time.

In the second stanza, The purple host referred to the ~~soldier~~ victorious soldier, where purple is the symbol of royalty, status, victory where host is the symbol of ~~victor~~ group of ^{victorious} soldiers. Here the purple host contrasted with the soldiers who had lost victory. The soldiers who captured flag can not understand the real ~~win~~ definition of success then the soldiers who had struggled and lost

In the third stanza the forbidden ~~eyes~~ ears referred to the ~~sear's~~ that can not hear symbolizes the success is not truly celebrated by the ^{victorious} soldiers ~~who~~ they can not really truly celebrating it but the ~~those~~ who have excluded from success only understand its worth.

The poem ~~says~~ clearly about that success is counted sweetest those who have struggled and lost. the waiting of success is making it more desirable & meaningful ② What are the numerous forms of psychological ugliness?

They speak about numerous forms of ugliness both in sleeping/awakening is common among physically beautiful women. The women who are greedy for money are ugly.

③ women who commit seven deadly sins (like pride, lechery, envy, anger, (covetousness) gluttony and sloth)

④ women who lead a life of luxury and try to look beautiful but have a gloominess and submission on their face.

Summary of 'Beauty Industry'

The Beauty industry is written by Aldous Huxley. He speaks about merits and demerits of the beauty industry.

It is a noble woman to look beautiful, young but for longer time. It is that it has not brought about any changes in the society. Beauty industry is important than other beauty.

Beauty industry is not affected by war.

Beauty industry is not affected by the war.

Beauty industry of America. The American women spend 3 million pounds weekly for face & body during depression also after the economic crisis.

The total income of beauty industry in America is almost equal to the income by illegal selling of alcohol, illegal activities, movies and automobiles. The total income by the beauty

industry is double of revenue of India

Europe: European women spend less on beautification they just wash their face with soap. They believe in their natural beauty. They spend less pounds. But they spend their money for expensive cars & rolls royce, automobile, electric refrigerator and many more things.

Nowadays the beauty industry is influencing the people's insensitive and promoting their products. The society is obsessed with physical appearance. Today's generation is full of superficiality values like beauty, vanity.

Beauty industry promoting ritual beauty over a rational beauty like intelligence. By spending the lots of money, we did not get anything. It is waste of time & money. We are that we did not find old women and difficult to identify the age.

Although physical beauty is obtained by chemical products & surgery but it is not a real beauty.

Social media are promoting the unrealistic influence. These are the photo shops which is greatly affected, but some group of people slowly understanding that beauty positively affects the society.

Ugly ugliness (5) 24

Conclusion → Men & women are really beautiful when they get opportunity to live completely & reach higher goals than only ugly human beings decreased in the world.